The Starting Questions

Question 1: What are your weak points and strong points in group work?

Communication, decision-making, scheduling, conflict resolution, etc...

I sometimes find it challenging to communicate frequently during group projects. I tend to work more effectively when tasks are clearly divided, and each team member can focus on their part independently, rather than relying heavily on constant collaboration. I consistently complete my tasks within the deadline and ensure my part of the project is delivered on time.

Question 2: What do you hope to learn as a group during the project?

Communication skills, time-management, conflict-resolution skills.

I hope to improve my ability to communicate effectively when tasks require collaboration. Learning how to coordinate better with teammates and share ideas more openly is something I'd like to develop throughout the project

Question 3: What do you think the assignment is asking you to do?

Get hands-on with text preprocessing, modeling, and analysis. Understand and apply NLP concepts like Zipfs' law

Question 4: What role do you hope to fulfill during the group project?

Leader, communicator, to keep the overview, note-taker, etc...

I'm open to taking on whatever role the group needs. I'm happy to step up and do my part.

Question 5: Which part of the group assignment do you want to take the lead on?
Writing, researching, formatting, etc...

Open to helping out wherever it's needed, but I'm especially interested in taking the lead on the researching part that's something I enjoy and feel confident doing.

Question 6: What are your goals for the project?
A high grade, a passing grade, to learn something new?

I want to learn more about NLP and how to apply it in a real project. At the same time, I'm aiming to do well as a team and hopefully get a good grade out of it too.

Question 7: What type of worker are you?
What are your individual strengths and weaknesses? Writing, researching, formatting, etc....

I'd say I'm a pretty flexible worker and try to adapt to what the project needs. I'm comfortable with writing, researching, and formatting, so I like to think I'm fairly well-rounded.In group work, one of my strengths is that I'm reliable and always finish my tasks before the deadline. However, I do tend to take my time before starting on the code because I like to fully understand the entire project first. This helps me avoid unnecessary changes later on and ensures that my work is more accurate and efficient from the start.

Question 8: What personal development goal do you have for this group project?
Become a better listener, take the lead more often, etc.....

I'd like to get better at collaborating with others—especially when it comes to communicating more effectively and working closely as a team
